

Parking on the Avenue Just Got Easier!

Parking along the Central Avenue corridor has always been an issue. But, thanks to the CDTA, the Central Avenue Business Improvement District, the New York State Department of Transportation and the Albany Parking Authority, things may be getting a little easier.

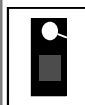

New parking lots along Central Avenue will be available to neighborhood residents and businesses beginning this spring.

You and your neighbors can park in any of the eight lots (based on availability) with the purchase of just one permit. Some lots will also allow parkers to use paystation, multi-space parking meters. Permit parking is available in all eight lots.

Decide for yourself which of the three flexible plans (see the back of this flyer) work best for you. Weekend and evenings rates have been extended and priced just for local residents.
